Young Entrepreneurs – Motivating a Generation

Our business community is a core driver of society. It will reflect the world we live in and never has it been more the case than now that it needs to look to the future in an innovative, positive, ethical and open way. Join our panel discussion to help our community to understand this better.

Si Ellis

Si started EllisJames in 2002, and continues his mission to deliver Design Thinking and Doing as a daily business essential. The creative process is not a black art, design is not a preserve of special projects. They are relevant to all and incredibly powerful for everyone throughout an organisation to improve clarity of vision, engagement, differentiation and brand strength. A dad of two teenage boys, Si is committed to developing close links with schools to improve the quality of design education and understanding as a problem-solving mindset as well as a creative discipline in its own right, driving innovation and entrepreneurship in young, inspired minds.
