Events, Hospitality, Environment & Climate

In November last year our UK Government unveiled its 10-point green recovery plan. Which includes funding for renewables, electric vehicles and hydrogen, and with the UN Climate Change conference happening towards the end of this year. 2021 feels like the year for Action. Its no secret that we are facing a climate crisis. But what does this mean for the Events Industry. As an Industry that is essential for business, for bringing people together and making connections, what can we do to support the fight against climate change and reduce our impact on the environment. In this discussion Lisa Sweeting of Green Sense Events talks with a variety of businesses; venues, organisers and suppliers within the industry to see how people are adapting to protect the environment and be more sustainable.

Lisa Sweeting

Lisa specialises in real, tangible, environmentally and socially conscious event solutions. With a career spanning over 15 years within the events industry Lisa has managed events from 70 to 7000 for private, corporate, and charitable organisations both live in person and virtual events. She now runs her own Event Management and Consultancy Green Sense Events to support businesses and event organisers plan their sustainable events.
